

City In The Rain

(Translated from German into English)

If the rain falls at the city
The air becomes quite clear
And I remember melancholy
About the former days.
There were streets full of people
Where now burned out ruins lie
And I can not understand:
How could this happen?

Dresden, Hiroshima, Bagdad and New York,
Thousand names, thousand places stand for murder.

Warriors want to die
But, alas, not alone.
The price for their dull existence
Has to be a great sacrifice.
But worse than the dogs
Are the masters, who them train
Who eager with a bloody smile
For more power and more riches.

If the rain falls at the city
The air becomes quite clear .
And who wants to do, can clearly see,
What the beginning of ending was.
Peace can not earn,
Who sows hate and revenge.
I hear the dull roar
And I know, it is too late.
